PUNJAB

The Land Of Agriculture

The state of Punjab is also known as the land of five rivers, due to the five major rivers flowing through this region.

These rivers are the most important geographical feature of this area and have given the name Punjab ('Punj' means Five + 'Aab' means Water) to this land.

The names of five rivers of Punjab are Jhelum, Chenab, Ravi, Beas and Satluj. From times immemorial, Basmati is being cultivated and cherished by farmers of Kalar Tract (PUNJAB).

It is the soil and environmental conditions which give the Basmati rice its taste and aroma. The result is long, pearly white and delicate grain with irresistible aroma that makes way too delightful dishes in Punjab.
